

We're Proud to Be Part of the PINS Project – Supporting Inclusion Together

We're delighted to share that we're once again involved in the PINS Project – Partnerships for Inclusion of Neurodiversity in Schools. Now in our second year, this national initiative is funded by the Department for Education (DfE), NHS England (NHSE), and the Department for Health and Social Care (DHSC). It brings together professionals from education, health, and social care – working in true coproduction with parent carers – to help primary schools become more inclusive and supportive environments for neurodiverse children.

What We're Working Towards

Through our involvement in PINS, we aim to:

- Support schools in developing a whole-school approach to inclusion
- Strengthen relationships between schools and parent carers
- Encourage proactive adjustments in how learning is delivered and experienced
- Build staff confidence and skills through training, collaboration, and shared learning

We believe that inclusion is a journey we take together – and that parent carers are central to shaping meaningful change.

Parent Carers – We’d Love to Hear from You

Your voice matters. This is your opportunity to share your experiences, ideas, and hopes – helping us shape inclusive practices that truly reflect your needs.

Join Us for Coffee & Chat Mornings

Between September and April, we’ll be visiting each school three times to host our friendly Coffee & Chat mornings. These relaxed, welcoming meet-ups are a chance to:

- Connect with other parent carers
- Get support, advice, and signposting to helpful services
- Join training workshops and informative events
- Access online support through our social media
- Take part in wellbeing activities to help you recharge

We hope you’ll come and say hello when we’re next in your child’s school. Keep an eye out for posters and social media updates with dates for your diary!

Let’s make this another fantastic year of inclusion, connection, and support – together.
